

Simant Shankar Bharti

PhD Student,

Faculty of Political Science and International Studies, University of Warsaw, Poland

Contact: ssbharti.kmc@gmail.com/ +48579334768

Violence against Women in India: An Intersectional Approach to Human Rights

INTRODUCTION

Violence is a physical and mental harassment, which manifests in the forms of torture, harm, untouchability, insult, abuses, brutality and many times in subtle forms. The women are generally suffering from this kind of violence not only in India and in entire world albeit reasons and forms of violence differ from regions to regions and countries to countries. Women are the victim of structural violence, which is not peculiar to Indian society only, and there are instances even in developed countries where gender justice has not fully achieved despite so many years of struggle for dignity and rights of the women as a whole. Although women as whole are oppressed vis-a-vis men but in order to find out the holistic understanding of women subjugation we can't take women as a homogenous category in which all women are equally oppressed. The intersectional approach suggests that we will have to look at multiple forms of oppressions and treat women as heterogeneous category where factors are focusing at caste, class, region, locality and language and many others affect women in different ways and there is no single or only one form of oppression. For instance, the problem of Dalit (down-trodden) women is completely different from upper caste women.

According to United Nations Human rights “Human rights are rights inherent to all human beings, whatever our nationality, place of residence, sex, national or ethnic origin, colour, religion, language, or any other status. We are all equally entitled to our human rights without discrimination. These rights are all interrelated, interdependent and indivisible.”¹

¹ <http://www.ohchr.org/EN/Issues/Pages/WhatareHumanRights.aspx>

The thrust of women liberation is to recognise them as human being worthy of equal respect and dignity, which has been denied in history and in so-called modern era. "Equality of rights for women is a basic principle of the United Nations. The Preamble to the Charter of the United Nations sets a central goal as "faith in fundamental human rights, in the dignity and worth of the human person, in the equal rights of men and women"²

The United nation's Convention on the Elimination of All Forms of Discriminations against Women (CEDAW) in 1976 focuses on non-discrimination, sex stereotypes, sex trafficking, also focuses on women's rights in the public sphere with an emphasis on political life, representation, and rights to nationality. This convention also described about the economic and social rights of women, particularly focusing on education, employment, and health and included the special protections for rural women and the problems they face.

However, this paper focuses on the violence against women in developing country especially issues in India. This issues for the selection of studies because during the Master degree in Social Work's fieldwork practicum as the intern in the Gender Resource Centre, Delhi and he was actively participated in legal counseling for the women. During this field work he observed women as one of the most disadvantaged group and the way in which they are facing discrimination at every step of life and suffering from the domestic violence even in national capital of India, then one can imagine the condition of women in rural India where patriarchy is so entrenched.

VIOLENCE AGAINST WOMEN IN INDIA: FOCUSED ISSUES

The question before us is why despite such omnipresent nature of violence against women in different forms has not lead to moral outrage against such injustice. Why violence has become part of normal life and not worthy of even serious debates and discussion at larger platform? Here are some reasons:

- Believe in Natural Superiority and Hierarchy: The man dominated Indian society believes that women are mothers of humanity so for the establishment of a good relation, sexes are one of the major foundation to the development of good relations between man and women.³ Man has rights on their wife and both made for each other but all the decision imposed specially in the case of family planning. Therefore, it is affected mentality traditional values towards hierarchal relations actually all the decisions made by male superiority and female subordination. However, women are also must be granted equal status in all forms of decision and society must be based on equal human relations. According to John Locke “Natural dependency for women are a social and economic dependence through the lack of property rights for a woman.” (Sydie, 2011)

² <http://www.un.org/womenwatch/daw/cedaw/history.htm>

- Social condition: According to the feminist discourse ‘women’ are describing as different not only in sex term but as gender that most important factors which depend on socially and culturally⁴. Therefore, the Indian society discriminated for the socialization between boys and girls from the birth to adulthood. They treated their child differently from childhood and girls were not allowed equally with boys e.g. girls have not a choice for any kind of decision that is only decided by parents, whatever they do, is only choice for them, so it is the major foundation of violence in rural areas well as in cities.
- Inequality of women: From the feminist scripture ‘Gender’ is define as socio-cultural or economic role of man and women, but as biological term their sexual orientation defines as male and female. Therefore, ‘Inequality of women’ means discrimination against women based upon sex and the ground of discrimination we can see also in 21st century in India. The Indian society still wants their child as the first choice is ‘boy’ and it is also leading the major inequality of women so the state of Haryana is the most suitable example of lowest sex ratio in India. The traditional Indian society is treating women as weaker section in India actually in the male dominance society is defining gender, as role of power and man are considered to be superior.

Types of Women Exploitation

- Cruelty by husband: This is the main foundation of the domestic violence against women laid by their husband’s verbal threats of abuse and physical attack. After unlawful harassment, women started to commit suicide, most of time they face serious injury to limbs and danger to life as well as regular health issues related to mental and physical problems. The death due to dowry system and the burning of married women are common phenomenon of cruelty on the side of husbands and their relatives in India.

³ Ashley Montagu (1952). The Natural Superiority of Women, Macmillan New York, pp. 238-248.

⁴ Hooks, b., 2000, Feminist Theory: From Margins to Center, London: Pluto Press, 2nd edition.

- Molestation: On the 31st December 2016, Bangalore city of India witnessed the mass molestation with women and it was an occasion of New Year eve party. However, in Bangalore city it was big shameful incident apart from this they faced these kinds of incident in daily life e.g. bus etc.
- Kidnapping: the kidnapping women created the major issues combined from it e.g. for marriage, rape and human trafficking.
- Abduction: the abduction is specially used for kidnapping of bride for the force marriage.
- Rape: Rape is a forcefully and unwanted sexual intercourse and women facing from this not only in India but also all over the world. However, from last few decades the rape percentage increased specially in big cities and Delhi gained its reputation as the rape city. On the 16th December 2012 the Delhi rape case incident was major object of brutal force.
- Sexual harassment: It is also an unwanted sexual contact of women by man and women is facing it in their daily life e.g. office, public transport and some other places.

Effect of Violence on Women

- Psychological effect: After the regular impact of violence, it affects women as mentally disturbance from stress, anxiety, anger and depression.
- Diminished value of life: Women have been always considering lower strata in the society and they never been counting as main decision maker.
- Loss of potential: after regular course of violence, they have become physically weaker and risk of illness.
- Family disruption: Due to abusive, physical and mental violence, it resulted in family disruption. In the most of case, children have also been affected.
- Economic loss: Due to effect of violence on women, they lost their jobs and loss of work productivities.

- Social disruption: An isolated woman is also deprived of supports of the society and she is unable to get access to the social environment.

Fact and Figure

Femicide: It is the systematic killing of women and girls in the context of extreme level of torture, cruelty and sexual violence. In Guatemala, two women are murdered, on average, each day but in India, 8,093 cases of dowry-related death were reported in 2007 and an unknown number of murders of women and young girls were falsely labeled ‘suicides’ or ‘accidents’.

Violence: The worldwide up to 50 percent of sexual assaults are committed against girls under 16 and an estimated 150 million girls under the age of 18 years suffered some forms of sexual violences in 2002 alone.

Harmful Practices: Approximately 130 million of girls and women in the world have experienced female genital mutilation/cutting, with more than 3 million girls in Africa annually at risk of the practice.

Trafficking

- Women and girls are 80 percent of the estimated 800,000 people trafficked across national borders annually, with the majority (79 percent) trafficked for sexual exploitation. Within countries, many more women and girls are trafficked, often for purposes of sexual exploitation or domestic servitude.⁵
- A study in Europe found that 60 percent of trafficked women had experienced physical and/or sexual violence before being trafficked, pointing to gender-based violence as a push factor in the trafficking of women.⁶

Sexual Harassment

- Between 40 and 50 percent of women in European Union, countries experience unwanted sexual advances, physical contact or other forms of sexual harassment at work.

⁵ <http://www.endvawnow.org/en/articles/299-fast-facts-statistics-on-violence-against-women-and-girls-.html>

⁶ <http://www.endvawnow.org/en/articles/299-fast-facts-statistics-on-violence-against-women-and-girls-.html>

- Across Asia, studies in Japan, Malaysia, the Philippines and South Korea show that 30 to 40 percent of women suffer the workplace sexual harassment.⁷

Rape in the Context of Conflict

- Conservative estimates suggest that 20,000 to 50,000 women were raped during the 1992-1995 war in Bosnia and Herzegovina, while approximately 250,000 to 500,000 women and girls were targeted in the 1994 Rwandan genocide.⁸
- Between 50,000 and 64,000 women in camps for internally displaced people in Sierra Leone were sexually assaulted by combatants between 1991 and 2001.⁹

FORMS OF VIOLENCE IN INDIA

- Rape: the most impacting factor and issues with regard to the respect of opposite gender by the male society.
- Sexual Domestic Violence: The unwanted and forceful sex is the most effective violence in the case of marital relationship.
- Patriarchal mindset of society
- Dowry related Murder and bride burning: It is another form of violence that is faced by women of low or middle class family after the marriage in both rural and urban areas. Groom's family is involved in the bride burning in case of lack of fulfilled dowry demand and in 2005, according to the Indian National Crime Bureau reports around 6787 dowry death cases were registered in India.
- Early Marriage: According to United Nation's Population Funds "the early marriage is a violation of human rights and despite from laws it is still being practiced in developing countries. One in every three girls is married before reaching age of 18 and one in nine is married under age of 15.¹⁰ Most of them have been observed in India and a great numbers of child marriage cases have been registered in Bihar and Rajasthan.
- Femicide: On the basis of sex-selective abortions are another form of femicide and it is more leading problem in India e.g. Haryana is one of Indian states and the decline in sex

⁷ <http://www.endvawnow.org/en/articles/299-fast-facts-statistics-on-violence-against-women-and-girls-.html>

⁸ <http://www.endvawnow.org/en/articles/299-fast-facts-statistics-on-violence-against-women-and-girls-.html>

⁹ <http://www.endvawnow.org/en/articles/299-fast-facts-statistics-on-violence-against-women-and-girls-.html>

¹⁰ <http://www.unfpa.org/child-marriage>

ratio becomes the problematic situation for not only state government, but also for the central government. Recently, the Modi government has launched 'Beti Bachao, Beti Padhao' (Save the daughter and teach the daughter) campaign specially addressing this problem.

- Female Genital Cutting
- Honor Killing: this is the most prominent issue in the Indian society, especially in districts of Haryana and love is a crime for these communities.
- Human Trafficking
- Violence against Women at Work (Sexual harassment at workplace)
- Gender discrimination at labor market: unequal distribution of wages and responsibility.
- Less political representation: In the general assembly election in 2014 and their representation was less than 10%.
- Inadequate Nutrition: Especially lower middle class women suffering this kind of problems and lack of proper diet, women combat from life and death at time of delivery.
- Status of widows: The Widows are considered as worthless and faces many types of restrictions even in daily conducts.

VIOLENCE AGAINST WOMEN: FEMINIST DISCOURSE

The question 'Violence against women' first time raised in the context of political domain by feminist of the second wave movement of women. The feminist thinker around the world, they distinguished between direct violence and structural violence. In the both forms of violence, they do suffer from different forms of violence and patriarchal setup of the society is more responsible for the pathetic conditions of women especially in case of India. According to Brigitte Schwab, 'Every man is seen as potential perpetrator of violence against women. (Schwab, 2017)

In the last few decade situations are becoming more pathetic towards violence against women in India. According to statistics of the National Crimes Record Bureau (NCRB, 2014) is showing that a horrific figure in 3, 37,922 total cases of crime against women being reported in India, an increase of 9.2% from the previous year and 58.2% from the year 2010. Cases of cruelty by a husband or his relatives (36.4%), assault with Intent to outrage modesty (24.3 %), kidnapping and abduction (17.0%) and rape (10.9%) are the main crimes reported.¹¹ This is just few pictures of violence but there are many cases, which is happening every day, and everywhere in India that is not registered. According to Indian feminist discourse situations are more pathetic in the case of Dalit women and they are not only facing violence from upper caste of the society even they are also facing dominance and deviant behavior of their husbands in the domestic premises. After increasing rate of violence not only on the ground of castes, classes and religions, but it also goes beyond intolerant behavior of intersectional level of violence then Indian feminist movement came into light in 1970s. After the long battle of feminist movement in India, the government has brought laws for men, but the feminists allege that this law imposed by the patriarchal society of India and it is not enough and unable to give justice to women. After the brutal Delhi rape case, 2012, the feminist movement laid in very ironical way after that finally government, for first time, amended its outdated rape and sexual assault laws in the Criminal Law (Amendment) Act, 2013. Nishi Mitra quoted in her article “feminists are now forced to rethink their strategies, as the law and criminal justice system in India have failed to arrest the problem of spiraling violence against women.” (Mitra, Discover Society, 2016)

METHODOLOGY

During internship at Gender Recourse Centre, Delhi as Social Work trainee behalf of Department of Social Work, University of Delhi. Researcher was the part of Legal Counselling Session at GRC every Thursday. He also covered more than 100 case as well as reporting of these cases to agency and as role of non-participant observant. The methodology selected for the study is Critical Discourse Analysis (CDA) and it is manifested relations between discourse and knowledge. “The philosophical enquiry, developed in epistemology, focuses on fundamental issues of the nature of knowledge, traditionally defined as ‘justified true beliefs ‘and for a selection of work in epistemology where this concept is discussed¹²”. In this research, the researcher criticized the violence against women in India under this counselling session and group counselling between both parties. According to Van Dijk T.A, knowledge is acquired, shared, used by people in interaction, as well as by groups, institutions and organizations. This methodology accepted discourse at legal counselling session as forms of social interaction. During the interaction; he mentioned and followed the principle of case study example; principle of non-judgmental attitude, principle of client's, self-determination, principle of meaningful relationship, principle of controlled emotional involvement and principle of confidentiality.

¹¹ <http://discoversociety.org/2016/03/01/feminist-responses-to-violence-against-women-in-india/>

¹² ¹² Van Dijk T.A. (2003) The Discourse-Knowledge Interface. In: Weiss G., Wodak R. (eds) Critical Discourse Analysis. Palgrave Macmillan, London, pp 85-109.

INTERSECTIONAL APPROACH TO HUMAN RIGHTS

There is tendency to treat women as a homogenous category and oversimplifying their oppression as something that affect all women across castes and classes in the same manner. The rationale for such commonsense makes only sense, when we consider women in relation to men as a whole. This reductionist approach to the question of women oppression which ignores internal differences leads to later marginalization of marginalized among women and also create new forms of discriminations and hierarchies which ultimately affect the lower strata of women and keep their problem unheard and unanswered. Keeping this intersectional approach in the mind, the central idea of paper is to pay attention towards violence against women in India. In the last, few decades' violence against women shaped into intersectional in the social context to the analysis of gender issues in India. Women are facing violence not only in few castes and in religions but it has changed in every section of the society in the rural and urban India e.g. class-elite class and lower-middle class, caste-upper caste, middle caste and lower caste.

The level of violence seems to be visible different in each class and caste of Indian society, such as in the urban family the level of violence is more seen as the mental violence, however on the other hand, in the rural family, the level of violence is fully aggressive and violent. However, if you talk of caste, here, too the level of violence is different. Especially in higher castes and lower-middle caste, the level of violence is the combination of mental violence and physical torture or in other words violence. However, in most of women, particularly in the women of lower caste or downtrodden castes especially status of Dalit women is serious victim of violence. Because they have considered be from lower castes among the castes and they have to suffer from violence in home as well as higher castes. In a state of being Dalit women, they have to suffer from more torture and violence. The intersectional approach is not only indicating here level of violence different section of the society they are also facing violence of racial discrimination in the context of selection the brides. If girl is dark or black skins colour, their family member faces difficulty to find a groom for them. Even if she got married with the white boy, their family in law has done psychological violence.

CONCLUSION

The violence against women in India is still a genuine issue and there requires more effort towards changing people's perception regarding women for the equal treatment. It is also an important field for scientific inquiry and totally removal of the violence from the society and treating with women as the homogenous category for proper address to human rights. There are many common violence faces for women at intersectional approach to human rights and in every section of the society, only women are facing violence, but the nature of violence changes at every section. Women are suffering from the gender discrimination which they face from their birth and it continues until their death. There are illiteracy, the lack of proper education, responsible for household works; rape, sexual harassment at workplace, these are some big issues for the women in India. They are also facing many challenges in the different forms, like patriarchy mindset of the society, economic, social security and political representation. Women have just 10 % representation in the parliament due to this they are unable to raise the voice and make a law.

REFERENCE

1. "Convention on the Elimination of All Forms of Discrimination against Women". . (n.d.). Retrieved April 2, 2016, from www.ohchr.org:
<http://http://www.ohchr.org/EN/Pages/Home.aspx>
2. 12 Gender Issues Affecting Women Around the World. (2014, September 29). The Culture-ist.
3. Afsharipour, A. (Jan., 1999). Empowering Ourselves: The Role of Women's NGOs in the Enforcement of the Women's. Columbia Law Review, Vol. 99, No. 1, pp. 129-172.
4. Borgohain, B. (1999). Human rights-social justice and political challenges. New Delhi: Sage Publication.
5. Burgess, N. A. (1996). Understanding Violence Against Women. Washington, D.C.: NATIONAL ACADEMY PRESS.
6. Das, J. K. (July-December, 2003). REFLECTIONS ON HUMAN RIGHTS AND THE POSITION OF INDIAN WOMEN. The Indian Journal of Political Science, Vol. 64, No. 3/4, Jstor, pp. 203-220.
7. Das, S. P. (Oct.-Dec., 2005). HUMAN RIGHTS: A GENDER PERSPECTIVE. The Indian Journal of Political Science, Vol. 66, No. 4, Jstor, pp. 755-772.
8. Hooks, B. (2000). Feminist Theory: From Margins to Center, 2nd edition. London: Pluto Press.
9. Kolnai, A. (Jul., 1971). The Concept of Hierarchy. Philosophy Vol. 46, No. 177 Cambridge University Press on behalf of Royal Institute of Philosophy, 203-221.
10. Maan, I. S. (APRIL - JUNE, 2008). GLOBALIZATION: Its Impact On Women Human Rights in India. The Indian Journal of Political Science, Vol. 69, No. 2, Jstor, pp. 371-379.
11. Mitra, N. (2016, March 01). Retrieved from Discover Society:
<http://discoversociety.org/2016/03/01/feminist-responses-to-violence-against-women-in-india/>
12. Mitra, N. (July 2001). Community Based Initiatives in the Struggle against Domestic Violence. The Indian Journal of Social Work, Vol 62, Issue 3.
13. S. Waseem Ahmad, M. A. (OCT. - DEC., 2006). SOCIAL JUSTICE AND THE CONSTITUTION OF INDIA. The Indian Journal of Political Science, Vol. 67, No. 4, Jstor, pp. 767-782.
14. Schwab, B. (2017, June 30). The Feminist Discourse on Violence against Women. Retrieved from ECPR: <https://ecpr.eu/Filestore/PaperProposal/505709f7-a68f-4f95-afc5-a1e09732292b.pdf>
15. Sydie, R. (2011). Natural Women, Cultured Men: A Feminist Perspective on Sociological Theory. British Columbia: UBC Press.

16. Tang, K.-I. (DECEMBER 2004). Internationalizing Women's Struggle against Discrimination: The UN Women's Convention and the Optional Protocol. The British Journal of Social Work, Vol. 34, No. 8, Jstor, pp. 1173-1188.
17. UN Women. (2000-09). Retrieved April 2, 2016, from <http://www.unwomen.org/en>:
<http://www.un.org/womenwatch/daw/cedaw/history.htm>
18. Venkateswaran, P. (Fall - Winter, 1997). Women's Issues in Global Context: A Syllabus. Women's Studies Quarterly, Vol. 25, No. 3/4, Teaching African Literatures in a Global Literary Economy (,), pp. 225-232.
19. White, K. (Fall - Winter, 1985). Teaching about Women and Violence. Women's Studies Quarterly, Vol. 13, No. 3/4, Teaching about Women and Violence, pp. 23-26.